Description of Presentation

Title of Presentation: Toxicology Cases!

Description of Presentation: Responding to resuscitation is always a bit challenging. We have algorithms that help guide us during resuscitation; however the patient has not read the book and does not always present or respond the way they are supposed to. Toxicology cases present us with the challenge of preventing the patient from deteriorating into full blown arrest situations. This class will incorporate critical thinking skills when we have to think beyond the basic algorithm. Actual case scenarios will be presented and worked in group discussion.

Objectives:

- 1) The participant will be able to utilize critical thinking skills.
- 2) The participant will be able to develop a treatment plan for compromised patients.
- 3) The participant will have a basic understanding of toxicology situations.

Target audience: ALS / BLS

Time requirement: 1 to 2 hours

Presented at Prior Conference : Yes

Teaching Method: Lecture / Discussion
